Opinions

A note from the publisher

Talk with any employer these days and the conversation quickly turns to the labor situation. Every employer wants to know where he or she can find help.

The answer to the question will determine whether the Maine economy continues to grow or suffers a bust after the current boom.

The state's unemployment rate in August was a mere 3 percent—the lowest it's been in decades. In the more rapidly growing areas of the state, the rate was below 2 percent, meaning-in effect—that everyone who wants to work and can work is indeed working. Yet more workers are needed.

There are a number of ways of solving the present labor shortage, and the one presently being used is the worst one. Presently, employers are bidding up wages, hiring away workers from other concerns, If wages get high enough, workers will also start coming into the state from less prosperous states,

This is the free market solution for a shortage of supply amidst growing demand. What happens when such a solution is allowed to work its way is that Maine industries that used to have a competitive edge over similar industries in, say, Massachusetts or New Hampshire, will lose that competitive edge.

The advantage Maine industries enjoyed-and still enjoy to some extent-was in the form of lower cost of land (or rent) and lower cost of labor. This meant Maine industries could offer an equal product for less money than the competition in other states. It didn't matter if the product was a skling vacation or a printing job. Maine businesses could afford to charge less.

As wages rapidly increase, and as more workers come into the state to fill the demand created by the present labor shortage, land prices go up, as do the prices of the various services needed by residents of the state. What this means for businesses is that to is competitive advantage is gone. What means for workers is that their increased wages have to be used to pay for the higher housing and service costs. Thus, there is an inflationary jump from which no one

There are other ways of addressing the labor shortage, however-ways that would mean a better deal for business and labor. The secret is to make better use of the underemployed labor within the state. This means re-training workers in older industries-such as the shoe industry—instead of trying to erect barriers against foreign shoe imports. It also means allowing parents who want to work to get out of the house and into the workplace.

The McKernan administration seems to be moving ahead in both these areas. The governor has a task force studying the problem of re-training, and the administration has gotten through the Legislature a $1.6 million measure that will fund the development of regional child care development centers. These centers will not provide child care but will recruit and maintain local providers. The Department of Human Services will hold a conference in Augusta Oct. 23 for those interested in developing new or expanded child care facilities. The department also has matching funds available for those who come up with workable plans for child care centers. The governor's task force on child care found that in nearly 25 percent of Maine households with young children, one or more adults was forced to quit work, or could not take a job, or was unable to continue training or education because of lack of child care.

The administration's idea is to get business to cooperate with state government to provide adequate child care for parents who want to work. The governor will make his pitch to business at a child care conference set for Monday, Oct. 19. in the Augusta Civic Center. The conference—'Developing Maine's Child Care System: A Shared Responsibilty, An Economic Necessity"-will join 500 Maine business leaders, health and child care providers, and school professionals with state and national child care experts to discuss creative ways for the public and private sector to work together to address the issue of the state's shortage of quality child care.

Aside from providing additional workers for Maine business and industry, providing quality child care will also be beneficial to youngsters who are presently left to their own devices. Nearly half Adding more Mainers to the labor force—through re-training and better child care—will serve to keep wage hikes within the realm of increased productivity instead of gearing them to a one-time inflationary spurt. Using the underemployed labor that is already in the state will keep in-migration in check, thereby holding down increases in real estate costs.

I urge our readers to pay attention to the two child care conferences coming up. I hope they will develop programs that will spell relief from the labor shortage that is slowing the growth of Maine business and industry.

Bob's Corner Store, in Locke Mills, was purchased by current owners Bob and Phyllis Coolidge in 1974.

The combination service station, fishing and hunting station, and general store is near the center of the village, on Rte. 26, near the turn-off to Mt. Abram Ski Slopes.

In addition to sales of petroleum products, beverages, sporting goods and licenses, and groceries, Bob also repairs autos and rents boats and canoes.

Bob had worked for Lee Mills-the former owner of the store—for 16 years prior to purchasing it from him. In 1973 the store was almost destroyed by fire. Lee and Bob rebuilt it, and Bob

At the moment, CMP is not buying real estate. The officials simply want to be allowed onto parcels of land lying along the preferred corridor in order to do survey work.

However, the local Committee to Stop Central Maine Power presented the visiting officials with letters from 143 residents stating they would not let CMP or its affiliates on their land or cooperate in any way with the project.

David Jenkins, a consultant for CMP, pointed out to the crowd that any decision on exactly which parcels of land will be needed for the project is still months away. He said it will be next spring before the utility company makes its formal request for permits to the state's Public Utilities Commission and Department of Environmental Protection. The specifies of the corridor may change up until that time, he said. And they could change later as a result of public hearings by the state agencies.

Mr. Jenkins said CMP had changed the preferred corridor since the earlier meeting in Andover, Aug, 5. Dewaine B. Craig Four years ago, the Telstar administration found, through a survey of recent graduates, that the district should offer college level courses as a regular part of the academic program. After student, teacher, and college input, the Advanced Placement Program of Princeton, N J., was the administration's choice for college level course work to be offered at Telstar where possible. In the areas where the Advanced Placement program was not offered, the administration and stall did strengthen the course offerings and entitled those areas "Honors Presently, Telstar offers Advance Placement course work in English (taught by Suzanne Taylor), U.S. History (taught by William Morton), and Pre A.P. Math (taught by John Applin). The present Honors Program courses are Advanced Biology Haught by Richard Hoy). Spanish IV (taught by Felix Otero-Otero). French IV (taught by Charles Taylor), and Chemistry and Physics (taught by Tunothy Kersey).

People often wonder why a high school would offer advanced or college level courses to high school students. Telstar offers these courses for two reasons. First, there are many students who need and can handle the challenge of a college level program at this point in their educauon Secondly, students who successfully complete the Advanced Placement Test, an individual college test, can receive college credits for the completed high school work

The Advanced Placement program and testing works in the following manner Under the A issurced Placement program the prospective teacher attends a summer workshop of up to 21 days to familiarize themselves with the course content as designed by the Advanced Placement program and taught by the teacher. Advanced Placement of Princeton designs the course, selects the textbooks, and provides the teacher with course background and informational

In the spring of the year, as a component of the Advancement Placement Program at Telstar, Advanced Placement testing is completed. The testing procedures are similar to the S.A.T. testing procedures with strict test conditions being adhered to The tests are then mailed to Princeton, N.J., where a group of trained individuals review the test packets. The scoring of the test is strictly controlled and only five grade options are used. The scores range from a low of one (1) to a high of five (5). The college level scale is defined as: five (5) extremely well qualified, four (4)—well qualified, three (3) qualified, two (2)possible qualified, and one (1)-no recommendation.

The results of Telstar's 1987 spring testing are listed below. English-11 students tested: three-5's; three-1's; two-3's: and one-1. U.S History-6 exams given: one-5; three-4's; and two-2's. The staff and administration is proud of the fine job done by Telstar students again on these college level

Individual colleges use these scores and written comments to award college credits to entering freshmen. As with each individual college's placement examination, the amount of college credit awarded to incoming freshmen varies between colleges. The direct benefit to the student is a reduction on specific college requirements, more course flexibility, and a possible reduction in tuition costs. An additional benefit to the student is increased grants and scholarships colleges and universities offer to these Advanced Placement students.

If you wish to learn more regarding Telstar's Advanced Placement or Honors Program, please feel free to contact the High School and ask that Suzanne Taylor return your call, or contact the individual teachers mentioned in this article.

The town has been without a police chief since Bob Steams retired at the end of June. Police coverage has been left to auxiliary police officers since that time. The town is paying the Maine Municipal Association $1,500 to conduct the search for a new chief. The MMA advertised the position during the summer, gathering 15 resumes. Of these, the town manager and selectmen interviewed five. The only one they really liked was the Falmouth police officer, according to candidates they did not interview. The slowness of the search has drawn some criticism from townspeople, as has the fact that town officials are relying on the MMA instead of an organization associated with law enforcement.

Although the selectmen had ample notice of Bob Stearn's retirement, they did not start the search for a replacement until he had retired because they assumed police protection in the town would be given over to the county sheriff's department. The selectmen had recommended to annual Town Meeting, in June, that the local police force be disbanded and the responsibility be turned over to the

However, Town Meeting rejected the proposal and demanded the town coninue with its own police force. Voters allocated even more money than the selectmen had set aside for county protection-n total of $65,000. Thereafter, town officials had to change direction in their planning and begin looking for a new chief.

The town is also looking for a new public works foreman, to replace Bob Davis who will be retiring in November. The town office has received 10 applications for the job, five of whom are from that," said Eva C. Twitchell, of Woodstock. The board concurred. Budget constraints forced the rejection of the increased-pay option, but not before a number of board members expressed sympathy with the substitute teachers and urged that a pay increase be included in next year's budget. "We're paying middle school soccer officials more than we are for substitutes to come in and be in class all day," said Merton Brown, of Bethel. "I think when you see the competition paying $15 more, you've got to face realily," said Stan Howe, of Bethel. "Thirtyfive dollars is not competitive and I think that you can sell that to any voter." The board made the following personnel appointments: substitute bus driver, Joanne Kingsley; substitute teachers. Linda Couture and June Inman; jazz band advisor, Harry Davis. The board accepted the resignation of Telstar Regional High School Resource Room Aide Kelly Scott.

In other business the board approved the addition of one day per week to the elementary creative and talented program. The additional days are to be added to the part-time teaching contract of Mrs. Helen Nevitt.

We traveled to Berlin, N.H., and beyond to see the beauty of nature. Mountains are extraordinary, natural history, within reach of everyone; dangerous to those who do not know them, but also filled with delight.

The foliage was spectactular, as it had fairly caught fire with the changing colors of deciduous trees such as the delicate yellow of birches to the velvety purple of the ash, including almost every shade between; many of the most luminous oranges, reds and yellows, which appear on the maples, the most eve-catching tree. Every color was held and rendered doubly brilliant by the dark mold of the evergreens; their tough resinous needles are ready to take winter at its worst.

Gorgeous, is the word we used at every

Along the Androscoggin River there was the setting of tumbled rock, rushing water and dark evergreens. Even in this crowded little corner of the United States, there are still wild and beautiful places, where you can climb a mountain. canoe a river or watch the sun set on a lonely lake.

We passed through places where there were memories of trails, darkly forested ravines, with tall hemlocks, huge boulders and lovely waterfalls, where once I hiked. In places we came upon tiny white washed steeple-towns, where across the valley there was a grove of magnificient, towering white pine clustered near outerops of gray ledges. stone walls and cellar holes. Much of the hard scrabble history of our New England is scattered over back country

Somewhere along the way there were sprinkles then an autumn haze which swathed the mountains, momentarily; blurring their outlines and softening the landscape to an intimate and peaceful wilderness. Then shafts of sun light broke through dark clouds. Gold and red again added dramatic decorations to the mountain view. Through the 13 mile woods and on to Errol we went. More memories of Gould days and a home I visited there so long ago.

On down through Upton and to Umbagog Lake which had special meaning to me; located on the Maine-New Hampshire border where the Magalloway River ends and the Androscoggin River begins.

Grafton Notch views were very familiar for I had hiked many trails from here, Mt. Speck, Table Rock, the Eye-Brow and others. Here on the mountain slopes and in the valley there was a rich display of autumn color. Areas of towering ledges flanked the deep valley. The clarity of the light contributed to the feeling of exilaration. The mountains and the sky united to form a single primeval scene; the brilliant cobalt sky surmounting all, while below the sheen of polished rocks showed the work of long ago glaciers Through this Notch all held the brilliance of October, a beautiful and lovely ride to Greenwood City where ferns were becoming a rich bronze, reeds turning tawny yellow, and the autumn sun on the pond, usually mirror-like, but at times whipped into white fringed waves beneath skudding clouds greeted me

One tree in particular, a maple, was like viewing a living piece of sculpture for it kept changing as the light caught it at different ways or at different times Again at home I saw the sun unch westwood to cradle itself behind "my" mountains, the last place to hold its dying rays and one of the lowest-cost producers of electricity in the entire nation.

Five Important Reasons To Vote YES on Question*1

Maine Yankee produces over 5 billion kilowatt hours of electricity annually - enough for over 200,000 Maine homes and 50 of our largest employers. Maine Yankee produces more electricity than all the other power plants of all the utilities in Maine combined. The major alternatives would be 2 to 4 times more expensive than Maine Yankee's low-cost electricity.

CLOSING MAINE YANKEE WOULD INCREASE OUR USE 4- OF ELECTRICITY GENERATED FROM FOREIGN OIL...

and Maine is already one of the most oil dependent states in the nation.

Closing Maine Yankee could increase our use of foreign oil to produce electricity by 50%. Utilities could be forced to bring in another oil tanker load every 20 days - burning an additional 500 barrels per hour, every hour, every day,

Rather than closing Maine Yankee and becoming more dependent upon foreign oil, it is vital — for the future of our nation and our state — that we work to become energy independent.

it would be an empty, expensive gesture.

"The outcome of the referendum will have no impact on the selection of Maine as a high-level nuclear waste site. We can find no connection between... Maine Yankee and the site selection process established by the Department of Energy."

Source: THE EFFECTS OF A MANDATORY EARLY SHUTDOWN OF MAINE YANKEE, a comprehensive study by the Maine State Planning Office, released October 5, 1987.

including oil, hydro dams, biomass, and coal.

Foreign oil would mean more air pollution and a greater chance of big oil tanker spills off our coast. New hydro would mean damming up our free-flowing rivers and streams. And Mainers just can't accept acid-rain producing coal plants. All the major replacements to Maine Yankee would be expensive and environmentally unacceptable.

THE HIGHER RATES, TAXES, AND LOST JOBS CAUSED BY A SHUTDOWN WOULD ESPECIALLY HURT THOSE WHO CAN LEAST AFFORD IT...

people on low and fixed incomes, and people working in industries already struggling to stay competitive.

Studies show that closing Maine Yankee would cause major electric rate increases, tax increases, and job losses. Northern Maine, which depends on Maine Yankee for one-half of its power, would be particularly hard hit. People already struggling to make payments on housing, groceries, and health care would find the rate and tax hikes caused by a shutdown especially painful.

Off-Season at The Bethel Inn

As the Fall foliage colors fade away and the leaf peepers head home, activity around town begins to slow down...
But at The Bethel Inn the "off-season" isn't nearly as quiet as it used to be.

Open daily, there's a lot happening at The Inn:

A Mid-Week Golf Special-For the dedicated golfer who wants to get in another round or two before the snow falls (again). 18 holes and a cart: just $28 a pair.

Luncheon and Lighter Fare-Served in The Tavern daily, from noon till closing. Deli sandwiches, baby back ribs, hearly soups, nachos and daily specials. Elegant Dining-Every evening, 6-9 p.m., in the main dining room. Beef, veal and seafood entrees, beginning at $995, served with a garden salad, potato or rice, and fresh baked bread.

Monday Night Football & Plano Bar Entertainment-In the Mill Brook Tavern...and, of course, your favorite beverage.

"Cabaret" After-Dinner Theatre-Every Friday and Saturday night in November, The Rag Tag People's Theatre returns with another musical production.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Brooks and I took in Pomana Grange at West Bethel Thursday night. The fifth degree was conferred at this time.

Olive Risko took Olive Davis for a tour in Albany where the Pingree homestead used to be. She had a paper telling of the eight divisions and what they stood for beginning at Patti Brook area. We took some side roads which went to the woods to hiking spots. All this is in the White Mountains National Forest now.

As we went along we would read what each spot was specialized by them. The Pingree area where I was born and lived until I was 14 is grown up so it was unbelievable. We climbed the steps where what we called mud ponds were. We thought we spotted a beaver dam there. We walked down to Broken Bridge Pond where Daddy took us fishing every 4th of July. Then we continued to the Crocker camping area and had lunch. We only saw two partridges and a few squirrels in our tour which surprised me. After lunch we went to West Bethel and turned up the Gorham road where we crossed over and came home on the other side of the Androscoggin River. About half way down a baby bear crossed the road and ran as fast as he could up into the woods. What a delightful and beautiful trip thanks to Olive Risko I hadn't been over in this area for some time. I love it.

Residents have chance to plan the futures of their towns at conference

Plans are in the final phase for the Citizens Community Conference, to be held at the Bethel Inn Conference Center on Friday, Oct. 30, from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., for citizens from towns in the SAD #44 area.

It is always very pretty going up through Co-sponsored by SAD #44 Adult and Community Education and the Bethel/ NTL Liaison Committee, the Conference has been described as "a modern town meeting", allowing citizens to discuss issues of concern, such as development. land use, municipal services, recreation, education, economic development, health, and maintaining a congenial small town way of life.

The Citizens Community Conference will be action-oriented, using a process for goal-setting and action-planning that has been successfully used by over 100 other communities and many businesses and organizations.

Funding for the Conference has been received from NTL. The Bethel Inn, Ross Joly, Gordon Gillies, the Bethel Savings Bank, Gillies Realty, SAD #44 Adult and Community Education, and the Bethel Spa Motel.

The Conference will be facilitated by Eva Schindler-Rainman, who has been coming to Bethel as a member of NTL. since 1966. In 1970, she and the late Ron Lippitt, a founder of NTL, designed and ran the first community conference in Bethel as part of the development of their community planning process. Schindler-Rainman is based in Los Angeles and has taught at major universities in Canada and the U.S. and served as a consultant to many groups and organizations. Her area of specialty is voluntarism and human resource development. She is the author of eight books, including "Building the Collaborative Community", and more than 300 published articles. The Citizens Community Conference will afford those participating the opportunity to discuss issues in a large group setting, and to work in smaller groups with others who choose to concentrate on a particular community problem or issue. The Conference guarantees results, in that by the end of the day the participants, in working groups, will have produced action plans on topics specific to area communities. The Planning Committee will provide all participants with a printout of conference findings and plans, and will conduct a follow-up project to monitor action plans in the months following the event itself.

Portland visited Mr. and Mrs. Jack Chappe a few days last week.

Mrs. Harry Maxwell of West Lebanon. N.Y., called me to ask if we had gotten any snow Oct. 3. She said that they had gotten 18 inches of the nice wet stuff. One tree in front of their trailer and one in back of it had come down, but fortunately missed their home. Their neighbor's aerial came down on their roof. They had no power when she called. There was lots of damage done in the whole park but no one was injured. My sister, Gwendolyn Maxwell of Long Beach, Calif., called me to tell me she was OK after the earthquake. She did say that she had a hard time getting out of bed to get to the doorway. While she stood there she heard her music box which had fallen off the television, play the Swan Song. After the quake had subsided she went into the living room and discovered that the floor was covered with magazines, and books but otherwise no damage was done. Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Osterhoust came to see how she was and said that they had lost a lot of lovely crystal. John Foster of Andover and Mrs. Richard Stearns of Rumford Corner visited me on Oct. 7. Mrs. Stearns stayed for luncheon, Mrs. Richard Stearns and Eric Westleigh took me to Norway for tests and to see my doctor on Oct. 9.

There was a bull moose seen in our fields Sunday of last week. Mrs. Nancy Chappe called me to see if Albert or I had seen it. Albert had watched it come from the lower part of the field and up across it, over the road and into the upper field. I missed it as I didn't get outdoors in

in full swing at adult ed

The Volleyball, Basketball, and Exercise activities of SAD #44 Adult and Community Education are in full swing, according to Cathy Newell, Director of Adult and Community Education.

Sports & exercise classes

The Co-ed Volleyball league is meeting on Wednesday evenings at Telstar from 7 to 9 p.m., with Co-ed Basketball on both Monday and Thursday nights, 7-9. Both activities welcome new members.

Exercise classes are running in Andover on Tuesday and Thursday nights and at the Woodstock School on Monday and Thursdays, with evening Exercise classes at Telstar on Monday, Tuesday and Thursdays. A new feature of the Tuesday class at Telstar will be the option of work with the weight machine. Sue Wheeler will be assisting Pat Morey with this class.

Participants in all Exercise classes this year are being asked to fill out a brief health survey form to give the instructors a better idea of the condition of the class.

Several requests have been directed to the Adult Education office for a less strenuous exercise program for those in the older age bracket. Mrs. Newell is working on this and would like to talk with anyone with past experience in such a program.

New registrations are welcome in all of the exercise programs. To sign up, call the Adult Education office, 824-2780.

Guest speaker at the Rotary Club's weekly breakfast meeting at Martha's Restaurant Tuesday was Dave Allen, of the "People for Maine Yankee's Electricity." This group is fighting against the referendum question on the Nov. 3 statewide ballot that urges shutting down Maine Yankee by July 1988.

Mr. Allen, who used to be executive director of the Sportsmans Alliance, said, LOW Mileage Used Cars "If this plant is closed electric rates are going to go up-and go up sharply."

He said Maine Yankee produces electricity at 212 cents per kilowatt hour-1987 Toyota Camry Wagon, loaded, far below any other large-scale power $12,995 plant in the state. "Nothing else comes 1987 Nissan Sentry XE 4 x4 wagon, 8,306 close," Mr. Allen said. If the plant is summarily closed there will be no way to develop alternative power plants-or implement conservation procedures—in the eight months from the referendum to the ordered closing date, Mr. Allens said.

On the other hand, he said, if the plant is allowed to operate until its federally 1986 Honda Civic SI (rare find), 22,000 mandated closing date in 2008, Maine utilities will have ample time to develop alternative energy sources. He listed these alternative sources as a mix of conservation, small hydro, biomass and possibly Canadian power. He said another alternative, being pushed by the coal lobby, is new coal plants, which he said he was personally opposed to because of the dangers inherent in acid rain and sludge from such plants. Mr. Allen was highly critical of the contention by backers of the referendummainly the Maine Nuclear Referendum Committee (MNRC)—that closing down the plant would end Maine's worries about having high level or low level
